What is an HS or Schedule B Number and Why is it Important?

An HS (Harmonized System) or Schedule B Number is a number assigned to a product for classification purposes. They help authorities to quickly identify a product. By international agreement, most countries around the world recognize the same first 6 digits of the number. This helps to speed the export process, and to minimize confusion and misunderstanding that may occur when trying to identify a product descriptively.

SHIPPER'S LETTER OF INSTRUCTION

Exporters need to know the HS or Schedule B Numbers for their products for several reasons. One need an HS / Schedule B Number to determine tariff rates, complete Shipper's Export Declarations, complete certificate of origin paperwork, and determine if a product qualifies for preferential treatment under a free trade agreement. HS Numbers can also be used to build market research, and identify foreign markets where similar products are currently being exported.
